GENERAL

- When you would like to make a comment, you will need to queue to the floor. When the chair recognizes you, you may begin your discussion points.
- The person who made the motion will have the first opportunity to discuss in favour of the motion, followed by a person who is opposed to the motion. The person who made the motion will have an opportunity to respond.
- Each turn on the floor will be limited to three minutes.
- A person can have a second turn on the floor if (a) all others have had a turn, and (b) there is time remaining.
- Please do not interrupt others while they are speaking.
- Speak only to the topic currently being discussed.

STEPS OF A MOTION

1. After taking the floor, state the motion.
2. Another member seconds the motion.
3. The chairperson restates the motion.
4. The members debate/discuss the motion.
5. The chairperson restates the motion, then asks members to vote.
6. The chairperson announces the result of the vote and instructions.

WHY ROBERT'S RULES?

Robert's Rules of Order are one way to manage meetings to give everyone an opportunity to share information, save time, and add structure to the meeting.
